

Scrumdiddlyumptious!

This week we taste tested different types of bread to see which ingredients we liked. We then designed our own bread product ready to bake next week!

Spellings to be tested Friday 17th
May

- calorie
- fibre
- slogan
- advert
- label
- repair
- maintain
- energy
- injury
- muscle

Literacy Mentor Text

For our next unit of writing, we will be writing instructions. Take a look at our new mentor text, can you think of some actions for it?

How to Trap an Ogre

Are you kept awake at night by the sound of ogres tramping through your garden? Do you lie in your bed trembling at the sound of another car being squashed? Do you wake up to smashed walls and footprints in the flowerbeds? If so, do not despair. Help is at hand. However, ogres are not easy to defeat, and you will need to follow these instructions. If not, you may find that your ogre becomes an abominable nuisance!

What you will need:

a spade, a brown sheet, tent pegs, a sack of leaves, some branches, plenty of soil, a large lump of meat.

What you need to do:

- First, dig an extensive and deep hole. This needs to be deep enough to hold the Ogre.
- Secondly, cover the hole with a brown sheet that is pinned securely with tent pegs into the earth.
- After that, scatter leaves, a few branches and enough soil on top of the sheet to camouflage it.
- Now, lure your Ogre in by placing a large lump of meat on top of the sheet.
- Discreetly tiptoe behind a tree and wait.
- Soon the tempting smell of the meat will reach the Ogre's nose.
- Eventually, the Ogre will try to come along and eat the meat.
- In the end it will not be able to resist the food and fall straight into the pit.

A final note of warning:

The Ogre will try to escape so make sure you don't go too near the edge in case it can reach over the top. Surprisingly, some Ogres try to bargain their way out. They may sob and weep and beg for their freedom.